Scott Logan has spent several decades helping people make smart, confident financial decisions. He specializes in portfolio management and holistic financial planning and currently serves as Principal and Chief Compliance Officer at HoganTaylor Wealth.

Before merging his practice with HoganTaylor Wealth, Scott founded and led Asset Planning Solutions, where he worked closely with small business owners, executives, and individuals navigating career changes, major life transitions, or retirement. His approach is practical, disciplined, and built around aligning money with what actually matters in clients' lives.

Scott has two grown kids and loves hanging out with family and friends, hitting the golf course, staying active, and exploring new places. He's also passionate about personal growth and leads a small men's group where they tackle faith, fatherhood, friendship, and the art of finishing strong—because life's too short not to keep leveling up.
